One. Build a solid foundation and build a solid foundation for social progress

"The roots are deep and solid, and the leaves of the tree breed by themselves." The source of life, the foundation of survival, and the power of growth of a tree all come from its roots. And education is the foundation of building a country and the foundation of a strong country. If education thrives, the nation will thrive, and if education is strong, the country will be strong.

1. Education is the foundation of development. Whether the region's vitality and potential is strong or not, the key lies in whether the ability to absorb the population and attract talents is strong or not. World Bank research shows that for every additional year of labor's average education years, the GDP created can increase by 9%; for every year employees' years of education increase, the labor productivity of manufacturing companies will increase by 17%. [1] At present, one of the most concerned issues of businessmen investing in business, talents, technology and entrepreneurship is the education of their children. The gap between us and the advanced regions is, on the surface, a gap in economic strength, but at the root is a gap in education and talent support. How to use educational advantages to create talent advantages, how to use educational environment to optimize the business environment, and then serve and promote development, is the common responsibility of the whole city. As teachers, we must put education in the strategic position of priority development, resolve to solve the difficult and hot issues of education, strive to transform educational resources into development resources, and transform "people who can read" into "people who can create." Let more talents show their talents and start businesses in this hot land of Huai'an.

2. Education is the foundation of people's livelihood.

Education carries the hopes and dreams of thousands of families. The common people hope that their children will become dragons and their daughters will become phoenixes. This "hope" is saturated with hardships, expectations, and responsibilities. It also places hope in teachers, schools, and education. Let more children succeed in learning, for the children themselves, they will have the ability to survive; for every family, there will be a reliable hope; for the entire society, there will be hope for development. Therefore, running a satisfactory education for the people is the most realistic pursuit and most ardent expectation of the people. All levels of the district must firmly establish the concept of "Grasping education is to grasp the people's livelihood", insisting that the green hills will not relax, letting the east and west winds prevail, and promote the continuous realization of new development of education in our district, and truly become a benefit project that benefits the people. Civil engineering.

Two. A strong "stem" of cohesion, which brings together a strong support for the development of education

The stem is the backbone of a tree. Whether it is a weak sapling or a tall crown, it must be supported by the stem. What kind of support does education depend on? It depends on the support of the government, the support of the society, and the support of all parties.

1. Sincerely help education. Education is a systematic project that requires the whole society to take action to care for and support education. It is necessary to vigorously advocate the idea that investing in education means investing in the future, and guide all sectors of the society to support education through donations, assistance, etc., and a strong atmosphere of "love to help students". It is necessary to listen to the opinions and suggestions of frontline teachers, do everything possible to improve teachers' learning, working and living conditions, and continuously improve teachers' political, social, and professional status, so that teachers have a sense of happiness in their posts and a sense of accomplishment in their careers. Having a sense of honor in society truly makes education the most prestigious profession and teachers the most respected profession.

2. Really value education. Education is a foundation and long-term livelihood project. No amount of money is spent, no amount of sweat is exhausted, and no amount of suffering is worth it. Keep education at heart and grasp, give more praise and support to education, less condemnation and less indifference. As long as things are conducive to the development of education, school development, and student growth, we must be broadened. Give the green light and strive to create a good fashion that values education and cares about education.

Three, add branches and "leaves", willing to moisturize things silently and modestly green leaves

The famous poet Tagore once said: "The career of fruit is respected, and the career of flowers is sweet, but let me be the career of leaves, and the leaves are humble and concentrated on the green shade." We must be willing to be green leaves, willing to contribute, and contribute to the big tree of education.

1. There must be a spiritual realm of behavior in the world. Teachers are called the engineers of the human soul, and they are the model teachers in the hearts of students. The virtuous people in the society receive much attention in every word, deed, and every action. We must strengthen our moral beliefs, insist on using the core socialist values to nourish ourselves and the souls of students, spread moral power, show the charm of personality, and ignite students' yearning for truth, goodness and beauty with noble morality and style. We must carry forward the new style of civilization and actively carry forward the Jiangyan spirit of the new era of "seeking truth, pragmatism, innovation, unity and hard work", work diligently at work, clean ourselves in life, take the lead in observing social ethics, professional ethics, and family virtues, and become highly respected Social role model. We must have the overall development in mind, actively respond to the theme of "Project Breakthrough", make full use of our own identity advantages and network resources, and take the lead in building bridges and contributing to investment promotion; take the initiative to assume social responsibilities and rush to the front line in expropriation, relocation, and conflict resolution, Actively act in helping the poor, helping the poor and benefiting the hometown. The vast number of teachers "full of peaches and plums" should guide Jiangyan students to understand their hometown and love their hometown, encourage them to return to their hometown to start a business and contribute their wisdom and strength to the development of Jiangyan.

2. To have the value pursuit of being willing to be a human ladder. Teachers are a profession of conscience. In this post, there is no enviable position and power, no prominent reputation and wealth. Choosing a teacher means choosing dedication, choosing poverty, and choosing hard work. I hope that teachers will establish professional ideals and always connect their personal destiny and education closely together, do one's work, love one's work, drill one's work, and dedication and display their talents in the teacher's post, and constantly create outstanding achievements and realize their lives. value. We must always maintain our professionalism, be determined to be a master and not a high official, concentrate on teaching students, do a good job of learning, and face all kinds of temptations and utilitarianism, be able to calm down, stabilize God, and protect our spiritual home.

3. To have the professional quality of learning from a higher level as a teacher. Learn high-level talents as a teacher. It used to be said: "Give students a bowl of water, and you must have a bucket of water." In the information age, knowledge is updated faster and faster, and only by being persistent in learning can you be tireless in teaching. The majority of teachers should strive to be "learning" teachers, firmly establish the concept of lifelong learning, constantly recharge themselves, and strive to broaden their knowledge horizons with new knowledge, new skills, and new technologies, update their knowledge structure, and improve the quality of education and teaching and their skills in teaching and educating people; We must strive to be "smart" teachers, who are not only competent in teaching professional knowledge, but also have the wisdom of being a person, dealing with the world, and living, and provide students with comprehensive help and guidance, so that they can adapt to future challenges and take a good path in life. We must strive to be a "scholar-type" teacher, actively devote ourselves to teaching reform practice, constantly update education concepts, reform teaching methods, explore education and teaching rules, and grow into a unique teaching expert and scientific research expert as soon as possible.

4. There must be a kind of love for children like a child. The essence of education is that one heart lights up another heart, and one soul wakes up another soul. Without love, there is no education. A qualified teacher should be full of love, love children like a child, write lofty in the ordinary, and build greatness in the small. We must care about students' warmth and warmth, and care for each student with sincerity, sincerity, and sincerity under the premise of strictness and tolerance, and guide students to develop and grow healthily. There are a lot of left-behind children and lack family care. Teachers should be like a beacon, warming the heart of every child with selfless love. The premise of education is fairness and respect. We must treat every child equally, respect their emotions, tolerate their personalities, not let go because of poor grades, not be alienated by poverty, not be disgusted by physical deficiencies, and be good at discovering their strengths and specialties, so that every student Both can enjoy the joy of success and win the chance to shine in life. We must use loving words and deeds to warm students, guide students, and influence students, let them enjoy warmth, feel good, form good behaviors of loving hometown, loving relatives, and loving labor, and become a messenger of love and the backbone of social harmony.

Four. Deep plowing and "fruits", fruit of sweet and happy education

Education is a beautiful undertaking, and the most anticipated thing is to blossom and bear fruit. The key to a full garden of peaches and plums lies in the kind of education and the establishment of standards. General Secretary Xi Jinping once said in a discussion with representatives of the masters and students of Beijing Normal University: "Being a good teacher is a problem that every teacher should think about and explore carefully, and it is also the ideal and pursuit of every teacher. There is no unified model for a good teacher. Each can have its own merits and show their talents, but they have some common and indispensable qualities." [2]

1. Give your sincerity to your career. Be loyal to the cause and fulfill your duties. Teachers, preaching and teaching karma to solve puzzles. We must always adhere to the sacred mission of education, stand on our posts, devote ourselves to education, devote ourselves to educating people, integrate our own intelligence and life pursuit into education and teaching practice, and truly become a soul engineer who is worthy of the party and the people. It is required to be pragmatic, rigorous in academic research, develop an academic attitude and work style of excellence, improve the quality of education and teaching and the skills of teaching and educating people, and strive to become an expert, scholar, and innovative teacher.

2. Give love to students. Loving students is the bounden duty of a teacher, and it is also the prerequisite and foundation for being an excellent teacher. The day before yesterday, a 12-year-old girl jumped to her death from the 21st floor of the community. I think everyone is very sad to see this news. Most of the students born in the 1990s and 00s are now facing rebellious youths and strong personalities. We need to treat them with care. Especially those "left-behind children", children from single-parent families and children with defects, we need our selfless love to warm their hearts and illuminate their lives.

3. Give conscience to society. The teacher's influence on students comes not only from academic literacy, but also from personality charm. We must put our minds on education, get rid of the temptation to promote tutoring, paid tutoring and other benefits, and "get out of the silt without getting infected." To calm down to teach, to build a business, to be indifferent to fame and fortune, willing to be lonely, and truly become a model for children, family and society to learn.

The career of roots is persistent, the career of stems is brave, the career of leaves is humble, the career of flowers is precious, the career of fruit is sweet, and the career of education is great. As long as we are determined, confident, persistent, and sincere, we will surely be able to run an education that satisfies the people!
